

Chapter 11

“Ushered into the Kitchen”:

 Lalia Halfkenny, Instructor of English and Elocution
At a Nineteenth-Century African American Women’s College
 Jennifer Harris

Questions for Critical Reading

1. Harris challenges the reader to think more deeply about “firsts” rather than simply celebrating them. Why is this important, and what does it reveal about women’s historical experiences?
2. Halfkenny’s story is an exceptional case. What are the benefits and drawbacks of looking at exceptions to the norm?
3. Harris mentions that there are no surviving documents in Halfkenny’s own words. What are the drawbacks of using “remembrances,” such as obituaries, as the primary source of biographical information?
4. Harris traces Halfkenny’s life through her connections with different places. How do specific locations influence Halfkenny’s experiences and identity as a black woman?
